

For its fourth edition, Le Cube and Les Écrans de la Liberté offer a space for the exchange of ideas between filmmakers, multimedia artists, and researchers, whose methodologies are attuned to the polysemic realities of the contemporary world, and the listeners, spectators, visitors and readers of their works.

The featured works explore and reveal shared imaginaries, allow for ever-changing modes of collective reception, and resist the homogenizing commercial logic of presentation and reception. Instead, practitioners invite the audience to engage with their tools of research and modes of representation in order to clear a conceptual space that blurs the distinctions between artistic expression, scientific production, and technical intervention.

“Digital Anthropologies” was curated in partnership with Freie Universität Berlin’s “Visual and Media Anthropology” Masters program in order to foster a dialogue with its student-artists/researchers centered around their wide-ranging theoretical and representational frameworks. With this in mind, we invited Chloé Faux and Côme Ledésert, two graduates of the program, to be members of our selection committee.

The site Cartographies of the Margins depicts the social positions through which the working class experiences life in the city of Nitéroi, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Such an undertaking was made possible by a mapping method meant to depict perspectives of the city as perceived by specific subjects.

« Cross Patterns : Path to be able to return » by Bárbara Palomino Ruiz

« Cross patterns : Paths to be able to return » is an interactive and multimedia installation inspired by the geometric patterns and songs of the Shipibo-Conibo and based on a tradition started in the early 1980s by the German anthropologist Angelika Gebhart-Sayer who suggested that the songs of the Shipibo-Conibo can be heard visually and the geometric designs seen acoustically.

Bárbara Palomino Ruiz is a Brazilian-Chilean visual artist who works in the environment of the textile industry, the visual and digital arts.

« Amexica Skin », interactive and multimedia installation, from Giga Circus Art Group Collective (Sylvie Marchand, Anthropologist)

«Amexica» explores a border zone located between Mexico and the United States America, specifically that which is approximately 3200 kms long and 300 kms wide, and extends from Mataromos to Tijuana, where Sylvie Marchand and Lionel Camburet spent six months. Having collected videos and sound interviews from the migrants they met at the border or along other trails, Marchand and Camburet present border-crossing as a series of stages, of which the symbolical image of the maze, the materialization of the threat of death but also of the quest to find the meaning of life, are a part.

Sylvie Marchand is an anthropologist, author and director in the collectif GigaCircus Media Art Group (<http://gigacircus.net>). She is also an artist and teacher in «Installation Interactive Device» program at the European School of the Arts (E.E.S.I) in Poitiers (France).

Claire Cauquil et Olivier Nevejans de la Compagnie Passe-Velours

Brought together by the project «AKOMA MIA VOLTA, faire encore un tour (go around again)» inspired by Greece's economic crisis, Claire Cauquil and Olivier Nevejans - choreographers - and Gaëlle Berthomé - videographer - present their work within the collective Passe-Velours : in which the act of documenting is the site of creation. By what channels does such «writing» take place and how is it manifested in the bodies of dancers? What forms emerge on the stage? on the screen? How does this relate to the artistic process? The public is invited to go through the creative process with the artists.
